GUIDER, n. f. [from guide.] Director; regulator; guide.

Our guider come! to the Roman camp conduct us. Shak.

That person, that being provoked by excessive pain, thrust his dagger into his body, and thereby, instead of reaching his vitals, opened an imposthume, the unknown cause of all his pain, and so stabbed himself into perfect health and ease, surely had great reason to acknowledge chance for his surgeon, and providence for the guider of his hand. South.

GUIDON, n. f. [French.] A standardbearer; a standard. Obsolete.

GUILD, n. f. [gylde, Saxon, a fellowship, a corporation.]

A society; a corporation; a fraternity or company, combined together by orders and laws made among themselves by their prince's licence. Hence the common word gild or guild proceeds, being a fraternity or commonalty of men gathered into one combination, supporting their common charge by mutual contribution. Cowel.

Towards three or four o'clock Look for the news that the guild hall affords. Shak. R. III.

In woollen cloth it appears, by those ancient guilds that were settled in England for this manufacture, that this kingdom greatly flourished in that art. Hale's Origin of Mankind.

As when the long-ear'd milky mothers wait At some sick miser's triple-bolted gate, For their defrauded absent foals they make A moan so loud, that all the guild awake. Pope's Dunciad.

GUILLE, n. f. [guille, gille, old French, the same with will.]

Deceitful cunning; insidious artifice; mischievous subtilty.

With fawning words he courted her awhile, And looking lovely, and oft sighing fore, Her constant heart did court with divers guile; But words and looks, and sighs she did abhor. Fairy Queen.

When I have most need to employ a friend, Deep, hollow, treacherous, and full of guile, Be he to me! This do I beg of heav'n, When I am cold in zeal to you or yours. Shak. Rich. III.

We may, with more successful hope, resolve To wage by force or guile eternal war. Milt. Paradi. Lost.

Nor thou his malice and false guile condemn: Subtle he needs must be who could seduce Angels. Milton's Paradise Lost, b. ix.

GUILFUL, adj. [guile and full.]

1. Willy; insidious; mischievously artful.

The way not to be inveigled by them that are so guileful through skill, is thoroughly to be instructed in that which maketh skillful against guile. Hooker, b. iii. f. 8.

Without expence at all, By guileful fair words, peace may be obtain'd. Shak. H. VI.

He
